

WHY DIRK BOGARDE RISKED LOSING HIS

FAN CLUBS.

DIRK BOGARDE is a normal, healthy male with the usual number of male hormones properly dispersed to insure masculinity. In other words, Dirk Bogarde is a man—not a half-and-half homosexual, a male body cloaking a female's desires and instincts.

But Dirk Bogarde is several other things besides a normal man. First, he is a thinking man. Second, he is a compassionate man. Third, as an actor of considerable talent he is a creative artist of merit.

As a thinking man Dirk, like all of us, has had occasion to think about homosexuality. And as a thinking man, who carefully observes the behavior patterns and thought processes of others, Dirk has come to the inevitable conclusion that homosexuals are sick people, unable to help themselves. And, since Dirk is also a compassionate man, he has come to the conclusion that homosexuals, if they are to be helped and thus possibly eliminated as a problem for others, need understanding and sympathetic treatment.

Dirk might have shrugged his shoulders and said, as most of us
